Colleagues,

Good morning, and good week!

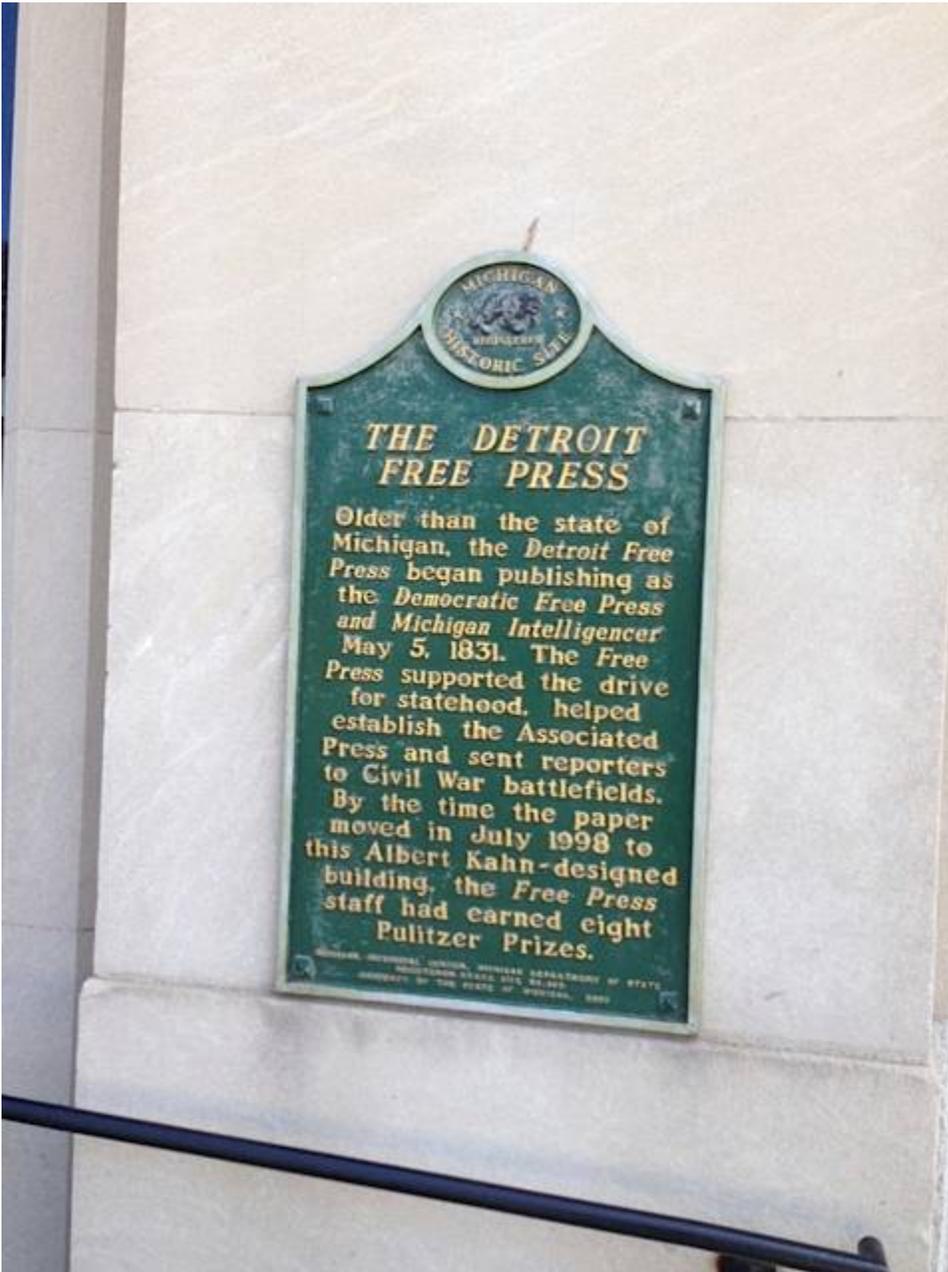

We all remember the sound of the Teletype, but if you've forgotten the sound of a typewriter, well, Claude Erbsen shared this as a reminder: http://www.youtube.com/watch_popup?v=G4nX0Xrn-wo&sns=em

Claude adds:

Leroy Anderson (1908-1975) was an American composer of short, light concert pieces, many of which were introduced by the Boston Pops Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler. As with all his other compositions, Leroy Anderson wrote The Typewriter for orchestra, completing the work on October 9, 1950. This particular orchestration was performed in a June 12, 2011 concert by members of the National Orchestra and Chorus of Spain in Madrid. The (typewriter) soloist is Alfredo Anaya. Watch his expressions and actions throughout the video...wonderful! Many of the younger crowd who see this video won't remember the ole typewriter. But older folks remember it well. Believe you'll find this rendition absolutely delightful. Dedicated to all the ancients who remember what a typewriter was !

While in nostalgia mode, Hank Ackerman shares a photo of this historical marker, across the street from the current Detroit Free Press/Detroit News building:

With that, here are some items of current interest.
