Colleagues,

Good morning, and here's to a great week.

For those who would like to make a memorial donation on behalf of AP photographer Dave Martin, the family suggests that it be sent to the AP Emergency Relief Fund. Here is the site address that includes information on the fund: <http://www.ap.org/Company/ERF> I find it appropriate in that the relief fund was started after Hurricane Katrina, and Dave led the AP's photo coverage of that tragic event. Today, a memorial for Dave is set for 3 p.m. at Shashys Bakery and Fine Foods, 1700 Mulberry St., in Montgomery.

Condolences to his wife Jamie and children Emily Clare and Skip may be mailed to:

2115 Carter Hill Road
Montgomery, AL 36106

Sally Stapleton posted the attached photo of Dave working in Afghanistan, a photo that was part of a 9/11 slideshow she assembled.

Our Connecting colleague Linda Deutsch, Los Angeles-based special correspondent, just marked her 47th anniversary with the AP and recalls her first day on the job: "It was a memorable experience. I had to climb up a fire escape type stairway on the outside of the old Herald Examiner building to enter a small room with clacking wire machines and a cloud of cigar smoke. An editor looked up and growled, "Oh no, another new one." He handed me a story to write, looked at the result and proclaimed, "I guess you'll do." It was definitely uphill from there." During her tenure, Linda has worked with 11 LA bureau chiefs – from her first, Hub Keavy, to the current, Anthony Marquez. In between: Tom Pendergast, Bill Waugh, Paul Finch, Ben Brown, John Brewer, John Armstrong, Marty Thompson, Andy Lippman and Sue Cross.

The power and scope of an AP photo is illustrated well in this piece, shared by Scott Charton and Bob Daugherty, on a man reunited with his family after an AP photo was published in USA Today:

And finally - if you are like me and count the Everly Brothers as one of your favorite musical groups, the death of Phil Everly on Friday had special, sad meaning. And this Yahoo commemoration site will be of interest:
